Amy Park

If you're looking for watercolor artist depicting iconic architecture, you can stop right here, since you've found the perfect one. Amy Park is known for being an expert on the topic, with her large-scale works executed to perfection. Among her subjects, there are Donald Judd's structures in Marfa, curiously designed houses across California, examples of Modernist architecture, New York City trademark urban landscape, and much more. Amy Park's watercolors are based on her own photographs of these major landmarks and skyscrapers, and it is simply captivating how she managed to paint them with such accuracy.
